IEEE is a professional association for Engineering and associated disciplines) with its corporate office in New York City and its operations center in Piscataway, New Jersey. It was formed in 1963 from the amalgamation of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Due to its expansion of scope into so many related fields, it is simply referred to by the letters I-E-E-E . It is the world's largest association of technical professionals[5] with more than 423,000 members in over 160 countries around the world. IEEE is designed to help young engineers and academicians to prepare for an emerging engineering career, ask experts engineering-related questions, play interactive games, explore curriculum links, and review lesson plans. This also allows students to search for accredited engineering degree programs in different parts of the Globe; visitors are able to search by state/province/territory, country, degree field, tuition ranges, room and board ranges, size of student body, and location (rural, suburban, or urban).

Through the Student Activities Committee, IEEE RCET facilitates partnership between student activities and all other technical entities.
